The opening of the year 1776, marked an historic era in the affairs of the new government in America, which was as yet in its formative stage. New York City, the same year, was one of the most important towns in the British possessions in North America. While rather more cosmopolitan than Boston, it was British in the main, and some time prior to the period of which we write no where else might a more cheerful loyalty have been both expected and found. But Great Britain had not been kind to the city named for the Duke of York. A colonial policy exasperating in its details, and constantly tending toward separation, had been pursued for years. The colonies had at last rebelled, and while war had not yet been declared from want of an organization as yet sufficiently a mouth-piece to announce its purposes of offense and defence, war was a fact. The shot, the firing of which had been heard round the world, was now a matter of history; the repulse of the troops of Britain at Bunker Hill, filled another page of the record, and the first day of January, now just past, had witnessed the unfurling...
